CURRENT APPOINTMENTS

Sexual Physician in private practice (since 1996)

St Peter's Andrology Centre, The London Clinic Consulting Rooms, 145 Harley Street, London W1G 6BJ
The Plymouth Nuffield Hospital, Derriford Road, Plymouth PL6 8BG

Clinical Director, Sexual and Gender Medicine (since 2000)

Devon Partnership NHS Trust, The Laurels, Newton Abbot Hospital, Newton Abbot, Devon.

Sexual Dysfunction Service (since 1993)

Urology Department, Plymouth Hospitals NHS Trust, Derriford Hospital, Plymouth.

I have been providing care for men, women and couples with sexual problems since 1986. Before the development of effective biomedical interventions for sexual dysfunction, I practiced as a sexual and relationship therapist, primarily using cognitive-behavioural techniques. I have provided the NHS specialist service for men with sexual dysfunction within Plymouth Hospitals NHS Trust since 1993. This clinic has gradually developed from a service solely providing care for men with presumed organic erectile dysfunction, to one providing care for the whole range of sexual problems experienced by both men and women. In 1996, I established a private clinic in Plymouth for the assessment and management of both male and female sexual problems. I first established a private office in London, in 1999, and now work at St Peter's Andrology Centre, at The London Clinic Consulting Rooms. In February 2000, I was appointed as a Locum Consultant in Human Sexuality by South Devon Healthcare NHS Trust, caring for clients with gender identity-related health problems, subsequently becoming Clinical Director, Sexual and Gender Medicine.

My expertise in the field of sexual medicine is recognised by professional and corporate bodies, both nationally and internationally. In the course of my work, I have published and presented papers at international symposia, been an invited speaker at many international medical congresses, taught colleagues from a variety of disciplines (including national experts, consultants, GPs, specialist registrars and nurses), and am involved in the planning and delivery of education for medical practitioners on sexual problems. I have been involved in the development of national guidance for the assessment and management of erectile dysfunction in general, the treatment of patients with cardiovascular disease and the biomedical assessment of women with sexual function problems.

I am particularly interested in gender identity, sexual desire disorders, the physiology of human sexual response, chronic pelvic pain syndrome/prostatitis, drug-induced sexual dysfunction, the role of sex steroids, and in ethical issues associated with sexual medicine. I have been involved in clinical research in the field of sexual dysfunction since 1994, both as an independent researcher and in commercially sponsored studies. I have been involved in the design of several commercial clinical trials and have acted as Chief Investigator for several multi-centre studies. From my Plymouth office, I have conducted a wide range of clinical and epidemiological research activities. I was a member of the Plymouth Local Research Ethics Committee for four years. I have edited, authored or contributed to four books on sexual disorders, one on dyslipidaemia and one on medical education. I have written many articles on sexual problems and their management for both a professional audience and the general public.

I am President-Elect of the International Society for Sexual Medicine, Secretary-General of the European Society for Sexual Medicine, and Chairman of the Ethics Committees of both the Journal of Sexual Medicine and the International Society for the Study of Women's Sexual Health. I am an Executive Committee member of the Andrology Section of the British Association of Urological Surgeons in 2004. I was Congress Chairman for the International Society for the Study of Women's Sexual Health Annual Scientific Congress in Lisbon, 2006, and was a Trustee of the British Association for Sexual and Relationship Therapy for four years. I have participated in numerous national and international committees connected with sexual medicine innovations and developments.

Other Appointments

Secretary-General European Society for Sexual Medicine (Since 2004)

I was elected to this honorary appointment at the Annual Business Meeting of the European Society for Sexual Medicine in 2004, having previously acted as Secretary-General for the preceding twelve months upon the resignation of my predecessor. ESSM has over 2000 members in 25 European countries, with 20 affiliated national societies.

I am Company Secretary and a Director of the UK-registered charitable company, the European Society for Sexual Medicine. I have legal responsibility for the conduct of the charity's business and work closely with our President (Professor Francesco Montorsi, consultant urologist, Milan, Italy), Treasurer (Mr Ian Eardley, consultant urologist, Leeds, UK) and our professional management company, AIM, in Milan. My duties and responsibilities are wide but, broadly, my task is to facilitate the objects of the Society, to promote and encourage the highest standards of practice, education, training and research in the field of sexual medicine. I supervise the administrative processes of the Society, facilitate meetings of its Trustees (Executive Committee) and have oversight of the activities of all its committees. I have specific responsibilities for the development of the European Academy of Sexual Medicine (a joint ESSM–European Federation of Sexology venture) and its Fellowship programme. This body seeks to achieve the establishment of a Europe-wide specialist training programme for Sexual Medicine.

I travel widely around the world, teaching on a wide range of Sexual Medicine subjects and representing ESSM on various international bodies.

PREVIOUS APPOINTMENTS

Principal in General Practice Salisbury Road Surgery, Plymouth. (October 1987 to December 1999)

I became a principal in general practice in 1987, taking over a single-handed practice vacancy arising through retirement. Initially a full-time GP, I became a part-time job-sharing principal, working with my wife, Dr Jan Longworth in 1990. Within primary care, I was interested in sexual dysfunction, men's health, androgen disorders, CVD prevention, asthma, medical education and research. I retired from the practice in December 1999, in order to fully devote my professional life to sexual medicine.

I was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of General Practitioners in November 1999.

Clinical Assistant in Urology (Urodynamics) Derriford Hospital, Plymouth (1989-1998)

I provided clinical and urodynamic diagnostic assessments of men and women with lower urinary tract symptoms within the Urology Department of a busy district general hospital.

Royal College of General Practitioners Tutor Plymouth.

Appointed in 1991, my duties included the promotion of the aims of the RCGP and the development of medical education in Plymouth.

Regional Tutor in General Practice University College London Medical School

I provided undergraduate education in primary care for students from UCL Medical School from 1995 to 1999. Between six and eight students each year spent a two-week attachment with our practice. The attachment included work on personal awareness and development, learning skills and basic clinical skills, as well as the principles and practice of primary care medicine.

GP Clinical Tutor (University of Bristol)
Plymouth Medical Centre.
(April 1992 – June 1999)

I was responsible for the planning, organisation and delivery of continuing medical education for general practitioners in Plymouth and south-west Devon, a population of around 700 doctors. I successfully completed a GP Trainer's Course and Small Group Leadership Course in 1990, then an Advanced Small Groups Leadership Course in 1993. I am a qualified Myers-Briggs Type Indicator practitioner, with experience of its use in education and team building.

I was responsible for the planning and delivery of continuing medical education in Plymouth. I had a particular interest in innovative techniques in continuing medical education. In conjunction with Dr Robert Kneen and Dr Hilary Neve, we developed a system of holistic professional learning need assessment and piloted its use in a self-directed learning programme for GPs. Many aspects of the current system of appraisal and continuing professional development bear striking similarities to the system we developed in Plymouth in the early 1990s.

Consultant to Primary Care Decision-making Research Group,
Department of Psychology, University of Plymouth.
(1993-96)

I was a member of a research group (4 psychologists and myself) looking at factors affecting decision-making in primary care. This work was funded by a £57,000 grant from the Polytechnics and Colleges Funding Council (now the Higher Education Funding Council for England).

Fellow in AIDS and AIDS-related problems
Department of General Practice,
Postgraduate Medical School, Exeter.
(1st September 1990 to 31st August 1991)

GP Trainee Attachment
Trainee in General Practice with Dr A M Royston
Connaught Surgery, Chapel Street, St Ives, Cornwall.
(1st March 1985 to 28th February 1986)
